Dear [Employee]:

So many of us are affected by cancer – family members, friends, and co-workers – it seems to be present in our lives daily. [Company Name] is proud to join with the American Cancer Society to facilitate our employees' access to health care information, resources and services needed to manage the disease. The American Cancer Society offers resources to support us whether we've been diagnosed with cancer, know someone who's battling cancer, or just have questions about this devastating disease.

The Society's National Cancer Information Center is available to you and your family members 24 hours a day, 7 days a week – even on holidays. You can call 1-877-227-5668 to speak with trained Cancer Information Specialists who can answer questions about cancer symptoms, treatments, financial challenges, and much more. They can also connect callers with local resources and programs right here in our community.

Another resource is the Society's Web site – cancer.org. The Web site offers detailed information on every type of cancer as well as how to cope with a cancer diagnosis, the latest cancer news, ways to connect with cancer patients and caregivers, and links to other resources. You can also discover ways to get involved with the Society through the Web site. It contains local information about events and programs, as well as advocacy information for our state.

To hear about one cancer patient's experience with the American Cancer Society's programs and resources, view this short video. We often think we won't need to utilize support such as this, but when a member of our corporate family is affected by cancer, the American Cancer Society can help us navigate our way through diagnosis, treatment, and life beyond cancer. Having cancer is hard. Finding help shouldn't be. The American Cancer Society can help.

Sincerely,
